

SCHOOL NOTES.

By W. H. JOHNSON, Supt.

The High School girls had the most closely contested basketball game in two years when they played the Lilbourn girls at Lilbourn last Friday afternoon. The girls knew Lilbourn had a rather strong team, but thought they could beat them without any great effort. The close of the first half was 7-4 in favor of Lilbourn. Then our girls realized that defeat was staring them in the face and that hard playing must be done to overcome this lead. Hard playing did begin, and the seeming defeat was turned into a victory. At the close of the second the final score was 10 to 12 in favor of Hayti. It is useless to say how jubilant our girls were over this victory. Next Friday afternoon at 4:15 the Lilbourn girls will be here to return the game. If you want to see a real game of girls' basketball, come to see this one.

Do you know of any children needlessly detained from school? Since the diphtheria scare we have had a large number of children who are still away from school. Our state school money is based upon attendance, and if something is not done to get these absent ones back our school funds next year will show a decided decrease. The loss of funds for the district is of small importance in comparison to the loss of training on the part of the child. The efficiency of the citizen of tomorrow will depend upon what we do today to educate children properly. In this matter of school attendance we wish to enlist the earnest co-operation of every patron in the district.

The Pemiscot County Teachers' Association will be held at Hayti December 3-5. Let us make the teachers glad they came to see us.

Watchword for patrons—"Every child in school, every day, no loafing."

Frisco Men Thankful.

The Frisco men and their families of this city desire to thank the voters of Hayti and of Pemiscot county for the handsome majority returned on the full crew bill in the general election November 3. The vote very clearly showed the esteem in which the railroad men and their families are held.

Lee Brown of Elsberry, accompanied by his friends, Frank Clark, C. E. Powell, Ernest Elgin, B. F. Cathron and T. H. Wray, came down Monday to enjoy their annual hunt. They were met by Frank Perkins, who, after fitting them out for the camp, joined them on the hunt. They are a substantial set of citizens and form a jolly crowd.

Mrs. L. E. Rice, nee Lela Gray, has bought the C. W. Camfield "10 Cent Store" next door to Spencer & Stubbs. This is the only store of the kind in town, and Mrs. Rice being so well and favorably known, should build up a good business.

Mesdames Joe Nunn and Emmet Varner were shopping in Caruthersville Tuesday.

Another Turn of the Turncoat.

The old blithering blatherskite who has been publishing at regular intervals a string of malicious falsehoods and defamatory fulminations about the loss of certain county funds on account of the looting of the old Pemiscot County Bank, is still blithering and blurring like a loon in a padded cell. His latest conflagration was spewed before the public in his last week's issue of his Turncoat, and is a demand that the bondsmen for the county funds turn over to the county court the assets of the failed bank, estimated at something like $250,000, and that the county court accept same as a liquidating credit.

Now, reader, honestly, did you ever hear of such a fool proposition? It is an insult to your intelligence, and nothing less, for it evinces the one purpose this old grafter has had, which is but to play upon the credulity of the densely ignorant for his own gain.

In the first place, you know, if you know anything about the matter, that the bondsmen do not have the assets of the failed bank to turn over, and in the second place, that the county court could not lawfully or otherwise accept such a compromise, even were it desirable. No doubt the bondsmen would be glad to make such a settlement were it in their power, and no one knows better than this bulbous-nosed old bum, who has already been sued for lying on account of his meddling in these matters, that such a deal as he proposes is unlawful and impossible, and that the county court has no power to perpetrate such a high-handed outrage upon the people.

In making such a proposition Old Chameleon Nutty seeks to create but one impression, and that is that the bondsmen hold the assets of the failed bank and refuse to turn same over to apply on their obligations to the county. He has already accused the bondsmen of robbing the bank and of stealing the county funds, and now he wants to make the people believe they are trying to collect the assets of the old bank and stick the proceeds in their pockets.

This should show conclusively that Old Nutty judges the people of this county by himself, and therefore classes all of them as fools. Any half-way intelligent person knows that when the bank failed the affairs were taken charge of by the State Bank Commissioner, according to law; that the State Bank Examiner edited the bank's books; that the same power directed the adjustments of the assets and liabilities of the bank, and that a trustee was appointed to represent the state in winding up the business; that the state's trustee holds the assets of the failed bank, and as collections are made the proceeds are applied to the liability account. The county now being practically the only creditor, on account of its lost deposits, will receive the benefit of the collections, and there is no other way under the law such proceedings could be handled. The county court cannot become collector for the bank's assets, which are mostly in litigation, unless the state's trustee is discharged by the state and the county court appointed instead to assume these obligations. Who but a thoroughbred crank would want the county court to assume such a responsibility, if it could, and thereby release the bondsmen for such an amount as the bank's assets might be accepted for, as the Turncoat suggests? If there was ever a bughouse proposition made, don't you think this is one, Mr. Taxpayer? This is another way this old blathered sealawag would collect the money for you. O, he'll get it, all right—for himself—if he can get his greasy paws into somebody's pockets for the price of an ad or any old thing! That is what is getting him. His game has just about blown up and didn't pan out as he expected. Instead of salve, he got sued.

To go over these matters again is but repetition of what we have already published, but possibly some people are more ready to listen to reason now than they were when the croakers were having their way. So here is a material point: If suits for collecting the assets of the failed bank had not been unnecessarily and unreasonably delayed by two terms of the circuit court, against the protests of the bondsmen and the state's trustee, it is more than probable that sufficient funds could have been realized to have met the installment payments as arranged for and agreed upon. But this trouble did occur and is the keynote of all the difficulties that now exist between the bondsmen and the county court. After this agreement, all went well for awhile, the bondsmen meeting the installments as falling due, besides raising tremendous sums to pay individual depositors and other pressing claims against the bank; but failing to realize upon the assets of the bank, as they had reason to expect, the time came when they were unable to meet their obligations to the county. Here is where the critical point arose, and is where good judgment should have been used; but, instead, riot and raving prevailed, in which the Turncoat led with foaming mouth, bulging eyes and lolling tongue. It raised its red, anarchist flag, bellowing like a bovine with hydrophobia, denouncing the bondsmen as thieves and robbers, and demanding the county court to take action at once, which was done. So high did the little wave of anarchism rage that the lives of not only the bondsmen, but those of the county court judges were threatened, and the malicious lies published by the Turncoat were at the bottom of it.

Now, after the bondsmen have been sued, their properties attached, their hands tied, and their business ruined and they thrown into bankruptcy, as the Turncoat admits and says, it comes out proposing a compromise, and that even by such unlawful methods as the county court accepting the assets of the old bank in settlement. When a compromise could have been made and the county probably been saved all loss, Old Chameleon Nutty roared against all sane consideration, and now, after too late, he is the first to propose a compromise, and on any old terms, lawful or unlawful.

There is just this to it now: If a mistake has been made, it has been made, and is practically irretrievable. The bondsmen have been abused and defamed; their properties have been seized by the law, and, if we are any judge of human nature, they will permit the law to take its course. The fact is, these men have no other alternative, and it is up to those who started the proceedings, not the bondsmen, to talk compromise.

As we cautioned in the beginning, there was a right and a wrong way to adjust this matter, and if the wrong has prevailed, those responsible for it should bear the blame and the burden.

County Unit Vote.

The County Unit Law was defeated at the general election, Tuesday, November 3, by a majority of 120,000. The majority outside of St. Louis, St. Louis county Kansas City, was 40,000. Since state wide prohibition was defeated by a handsome majority two years ago, this certainly should stop the continued agitation and turmoil for a few years to come.

"Country Folks," the home talent play given by the Hussar Band in the city hall opera house Tuesday night, was a success. It was also a financial success. The boys were assisted in the play by several of the young ladies, who acquitted themselves with credit. Many say it is the best show the town has had in a long time.

I take this means to express my thanks to the voters who made possible my election for justice of the peace of this township, and by the conscientious and faithful performance of duty I hope to merit the confidence reposed in me.—W. W. Tarkington.

Bob Coppage of Caruthersville was here Tuesday night.

Billie Finch was a Caruthersville visitor Tuesday.
